

HYPERALLERGIC

Wouk, Emily, "Your Concise Los Angeles Art Guide for September 2020," Hyperallergic, September 8, 2020.

Your Concise Los Angeles Art Guide for September 2020

Your list of must-see, fun, insightful, and very Los Angeles art events this month.

Troy Chew, "Three Crowns (8)" (2020), oil and acrylic on canvas, 46 x 40 inches (image courtesy Parker Gallery)

While Los Angeles art lovers can't plan museum dates just yet, there's still plenty to see online and by appointment at galleries and smaller art spaces around town. In an effort to help guide your fall into being as art-filled as possible, we'll be compiling monthly selections of must-see shows in the city all season.

This September, enjoy a mix of art made during the pandemic, new MFA work, protest posters, and stellar solo shows.

—Elisa Wouk Almino, Senior Editor, Los Angeles

ALTMAN SIEGEL

1150 25TH ST. SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94107

tel: 415.576.9300 / fax: 415.373.4471

www.altmansiegel.com

Maija Peeples Bright and Troy Chew

When: September 13–October 31

Where: Parker Gallery (2441 Glendower Ave, Los Feliz, Los Angeles) (open by appointment)

Parker Gallery opens its fall season with solo shows from two quite different but equally exuberant artists. Maija Peeples Bright: beautiFOAL is a career-spanning retrospective of the work of this seminal Funk and Nut artist, covering nearly six decades of eye-popping paintings and sculptures filled with a veritable ark of beasts. Fuck the King's Horses and All the King's Men is LA-based artist Troy Chew's first solo show with the gallery, showcasing his detailed, blinged-out paintings that connected hip-hop aesthetics to earlier historical precedents.